

CITY
FORM
AT STAKE

One week tomorrow Daytona voters will go to the polls to make a most momentous decision as to the future municipal conduct of political affairs of the city. The ballot which will be handed to probably eight hundred electors will contain the names of fourteen men and women of the city, seven of whom will be chosen city commissioners for varying terms, under the new city charter which passed last month. Upon the shoulders of these seven will largely depend the success or failure of managerial form of government here, a municipal method which has worked successful in other cities where the board of commissioners has been carefully selected.

While the entire list of nominees for the positions is of high character and ability, the two tickets are distinctly different in formation and personnel. Seven of the candidates have been chosen by representatives of the civic organizations, by the same citizens who helped to give Daytona the new charter, and who have selected the seven representative business men and women to operate under the charter because they feel that these seven are the most capable, impartial and fair-minded citizens of the city for the positions.

The balance of the fourteen names were selected and nominated by those forces within the city government over which the electors made a violent protest last month by swamping their candidates at the first election and by passing the charter at the second. A portion of the list of nominees on the boss ticket were inalterably opposed to the charter under which they will now be an influence and which they can help to wreck or make succeed.

The very nature of the method of selection of the candidates—one open-handedly and above board, and the other secretly and by whom anyone might guess in three guesses—makes it imperative that the electorate of Daytona go to the polls and support the civic ticket, for the betterment of the city and its political welfare.

Those names showing prominently below compose the civic ticket, selected from the city at large—an impartial, fair body of men and women, fully capable of governing the city of Daytona under the new charter. Vote the civic ticket.

James Potet never thought of suicide. Other men have done so in Potet's circumstances, for he has a wife and two children to support, and his wage as a farm hand was only $1 a day. But Potet whistled at his work—and said, "Better days are coming."

Then Potet bought 64 acres of land from his employer in Simpson county, Ky., for $10. Along came oil drillers and struck oil on his land. Now Potet is drawing $50 a day in royalties. If you ever think of suicide, remember this: You never know when luck will break for you—maybe in the next hour!

Sure, you can live down the nick-name that has cursed you since your boyhood. No matter how persistently it sticks you can overcome its handicap—by doing big things. "Baby" Brown is an instance. His real name is John Nichols Brown, his home is at Newport, R. I., and he became nationally known as "Baby" Brown because he was born worth a million. But now he has won a coveted Harvard scholarship because of excellence in his studies and he will be graduated with honors next June. Nothing babyish about that.

Only about 200,000 Quakers in our country, but they have set out to get 1,000,000 barrels of flour for Russian famine sufferers. If all Americans helped on the same basis of population, Russia would get 535,000,000 barrels of flour. Quakers, active as a good influence in the world, have carried on their creed nearly 300 years. They have been unflinching champions against war, slavery and swearing. Too bad we haven't 200,000,000 instead of only 200,000 of them.

Only 5,332,760 Americans paid income tax on 1919 earnings, according to Uncle Sam's final audit. The average net income was $1,724.05, or about $71.50 a week. It requires considerable imagination to believe that only 5,332,760 out of some 46,000,000 "gainfully employed" made that much during the 1919 boom. A good many fish slip through the net.

A White Plains, N. Y., woman sued for divorce from her husband, saying that he has achieved so much success in politics that it has turned his head. Now she complains life with him is unbearable. We don't know the gentleman, but we'll say he's a politician. The fellow who's a real politician keeps his home constituency satisfied. That means the wife and the kids.

"I know more of your career than you think, Grey. You have been as spy as well as a traitor. And now you are crowding your infamy by weaving some spell over my cousin. I can hardly hope that you appreciate the honor I am doing you."

The black boy ran down the steps and presently Ephraim was in the shadow of the thicket:

"Give one to Mr. Grey, Ephraim, and the other to me."

"Ephraim," warned Erskine, "take this pistol. You may need it, to protect yourself."

"Indeed, yes," returned Grey, "and kindly instruct him not to use it to protect you." For answer Erskine sprang from the shadow—discarding formal courtesies.

"En garde!" he called sternly. The two shining blades clashed lightly and quivered against each other in the moonlight.

Grey was cautious, at first, trying out his opponent's increase in skill. "You have made marked improvement."

"Thank you," smiled Erskine. "Your wrist is much stronger."

"Naturally," Grey leaped back ward and parried just in time a vicious thrust that was like a dart of lightning.

"Ah! A Frenchman taught you that?"

"A Frenchman taught me all the little I know."

"I wonder if he taught you how to meet this?"

"He did," answered Erskine, parrying easily and with an answering thrust that turned Grey suddenly anxious. Grey began to breathe heavily.

"I think, too," said Erskine, "that my wind is better than yours—would you like a short resting spell?"

From the shadow Ephraim chuckled, and Grey snapped:

"Make that black devil—"

"Keep quiet, Ephraim!" broke in Erskine sternly.

Grey was getting angry now and was beginning to pant.

"Your wind is short," said Erskine with mock compassion. "I will give you a little breathing spell present ly."

Grey was not wasting his precious breath now and he made no answer.

"Now," said Erskine sharply, and Grey's blade flew from his hand and lay like a streak of silver on the dewy grass. Grey rushed for it.

"Down!" he roared, and wheeled furiously—patience, humor and caution quieted gone—and they fought now in deadly silence.

There was the sound of voices, and it was evident that the game had ended in a quarrel and the players were coming up the river-bank toward them. Erskine heard, but if Grey did he at first gave no sign—he was too much concerned with the death that faced him. Suddenly Erskine knew that Grey had heard, for the fear in his face gave way to a diabolic grin of triumph and he flashed suddenly into defense—if he could protect himself only a little longer! Erskine had delayed the finishing stroke too long and he must make it now.

Grey gave way step by step—parrying only. The blades flashed like tiny bits of lightning. Erskine's face grimed and inexorable, brought the sick fear back into Grey's, and Erskine saw his enemy's lips open.

He lunged then, his blade went true, sank to the hilt, and Grey's warped soul started on its way with a heaven cry for help. Erskine sprang back into the shadows and snatched his pistol from Ephraim's hand.

"Get out of the way now. Tell them I did it."

Once he looked back. He saw Barbara at the bulldoor with old Mammy behind her. With a running leap he vaulted the hedge, and hidden in the bushes, Ephraim heard Freddy's hoofs beating ever more faintly on the sandy road.

CHAPTER XXIII
Yorktown broke the British heart, and General Dale went home to Red Oaks. He had pieced out the full story of Barbara and Erskine and Dane Grey, and wisely he told her first of Grey's dark treachery, and the girl listened with horrified silence.

"I have never understood about myself—and that man," she said, "and I never will."

"I do," said the general gently, "and I understand you through my sister who was so like you, Erskine's father was as indignant as Harry is now, and I am trying to act toward you as my father did toward her. The girl pressed her lips to one of his hands.

"I think I'd better tell you the whole story now," said General Dale, and he told of Erskine's father, his marriage, and the capture of his wife and the little son by the Indians, all of which she knew, and the girl wondered why he should be telling her again. The general paused:

"You know Erskine's mother was not killed. He found her." The girl looked up amazed and incredulous.

"Yes," he went on, "the white woman whom he found in the Indian village was his mother."

"Father!" She lifted her head quickly, leaned back with hands caught tight in front of her, looked up into his face—her own crimsoned and paling as she took in the full meaning of it all. Her eyes dropped.

"Then," she said slowly, "that Indian girl—Early Morn—is his half sister. Oh, oh! A great pity flooded her heart and eyes. 'Why didn't Erskine take them away from the Indians?'"

"His mother wouldn't leave them," and Barbara understood.

"Poor thing—poor thing!"

"I think Erskine is going to try now."

"Did you tell him to bring them here?" The general put his hand on her head.

"I hoped you would say that. I did, but he shook his head."

"Poor Erskine!" she whispered, and her tears came. Her father looked back and for a moment closed his eyes.

"There is more," he said finally. "Erskine's father was the eldest brother—and Red Oaks."

The girl sprang to her feet, agitated, shamed. "Belongs to Erskine," she finished with her face in her hands. "God pity me," she whispered. "I drove him from his own name."

"No," said the old general with a gentle smile. He was driving the barb deep, but sooner or later it had to be done.

"Look here!" He pulled an old piece of paper from his pocket and handed it to her. Her wide eyes fell upon a rude boyish scrawl and a crude drawing of a buffalo pierced by an arrow.

"It make me laugh. I have no use for give hold dear plantation bar-ba-ra!"

"Oh!" cried the girl and then "where is he?"

"Waiting at Williamsburg to get his discharge," she rushed swiftly down the steps, calling:

"Ephraim! Ephraim!"

And ten minutes later the happy, grinning Ephraim, mounted on the thoroughbred, was speeding ahead of a whirlwind of dust with a little secret note in his battered slouch hat.

"You said you would come when ever I wanted you. I want you to come now—BARBARA."

The girl would not go to bed, and the old general from his window saw her like some white spirit of the night motionless on the porch. And there through the long hours she sat. The dawn came and with it Ephraim. The girl waited while she was, Ephraim took off his hat, tore his hair.

"Morse Erskine done none, Miss Barbara," he said brokenly. "He done gone two days."

The girl said nothing, and there the old general found her still motionless—the torn bits of her note and the torn bits of Erskine's scrawl lay dead scattered about her feet.

on the land that Dave Yandell had picked out for him, and in the center of it threw up a rude log hut in which to house his mother, for his remembrance of her made him believe that she would prefer to live alone.

In the early spring, when he brought his mother home, she said that Black Wolf had escaped and gone farther in to the wilderness—that Early Morn had gone with him.

Erskine, not knowing that Barbara was on her way to find him, started on a hunting-trip. In a few days Barbara arrived and found his mother unable to leave her bed, and Lydia Nee sitting beside her.

Barbara was dismayed by Erskine's absence and his mother's look of suffering and extreme weakness, and the touch of her cold fingers.

There was no way of reaching her son, she said—he did not know of her illness. Barbara told her of Erskine's giving her his inheritance, and that she had come to return it.

Meanwhile Erskine, sad face, had turned homeward. To his bewilderment, he found Barbara at his mother's bedside. A glance at their faces told him that death was near.

His mother held out her hand to him while still holding Barbara's. As in a dream, he bent over to kiss her, and with a last effort she joined their hands, clasping both.

A great peace transformed her face as she slowly looked at Barbara and then up at Erskine. With a sigh her dimming eyes passed into the final dark.

Two days later they were married. In the silence that fell, Erskine spoke of the life before them, of its hardships and dangers, and then of the safety and comfort of Virginia. Barbara smiled:

"You choose the wilderness, and your choice is mine. We will leave the same choice."

She flushed suddenly and bent her head.

"To those who come after us," finished Erskine.

THE END

CHIROPRACTIC
CONSISTS ENTIRELY OF ADJUSTING THE MOVABLE SEGMENTS OF THE SPINAL COLUMN TO NORMAL POSITION

Chiropactor is a science. The chiropactor is trained to detect spinal abnormalities by hand, and locate the position and relation of the spinal bones. His methods of adjusting these are so exact, so specific, that he can be absolutely positive that the adjustment will be followed by just one result—the utmost effort of Nature to cure.

The only element of uncertainty left—the only reason why Chiropactor cannot promise a complete cure to every patient in the world—is the possibility that the case has gone so far that Nature herself will not cure it, which means that no treatment on earth would be of any avail.

Chiropactors do not depend for their success upon the intervention of elements which form a basis for other methods. The very simplicity of the system makes for accuracy. For instance, the Chiropactor knows—not guesses—but KNOWS—what organs in the body are weak or diseased after he has analyzed the spine. Contrary to the popular notion, his word is the word of authority. There are things about disease which he cannot find out in this way, but these things are not essential to the cure, and here against the scientific nature of the system shows itself. He knows, with a certainty from the beginning, what is hidden from him. He never takes a guess for a fact.

It is because Chiropactor is exact, specific and definite, that Chiropactors achieve a higher percentage of results than any other profession.

Dr. Lincoln Hulley Delivers Interesting Address at Forum on Education in a Democracy

That the South has religion in regard to education and that every state in Dixie is on fire, red hot for education, are perhaps the most important statements made by Dr. Lincoln Hulley at the Auditorium Open Forum Sunday afternoon.

After listening to the great educator and senator for over an hour, his wrapped audience expressed its willingness to let him continue another hour and a half if he wished to do so. No one was disappointed who had come to the meeting expecting a great intellectual treat, for Dr. Hulley showed himself to be master of his subject, "Education and Democracy," and, through large accomplishments and rich experiences, one of the foremost educators in the state.

The speaker at the very outset of his address put his audience at ease with an explanation of the Irish question as it had been made clear to him in a communication from his son in England. From that point of close contact with his own listeners, Dr. Hulley went on to the time that Horace Mann established the doctrine of a free school in a free state to the present day, practical side of education.

He cited the vital part such famous educators as President Angell of the University of Michigan, Prof. Gilman of Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, and Dr. Kanev Harvard of the University of Chicago, had played in the building and broadening of education in this country. Dr. Hulley paid special tribute to President Angell as the pioneer, Prof. Gilman as the leader in graduate instruction, and William Harvard as the instructor of new and broader ideas in education.

The speaker likened an individual to a three storied house, the physical as the ground floor, the education as the second story, and the spiritual or moral as the third. He pointed out the doctrine of a sound mind in a sound body by striking illustration which drove his statements home.

In answering the question when education in democracy should begin, he stated that it should be started at the birth of every child. At six years of age the state takes a hand in the matter of education but before that the child has been attending a wonderful school in the home if the mother is the right kind of a teacher. If the child is intelligent it cannot be kept from going to school and assimilating from Nature and its surroundings a mass of information during those first few years of life.

By a very interesting story of trained rules, Dr. Hulley brought out his point on the differences in animals and children, and leading up to later statement regarding the segregation of pupils into bright, less bright and dull ones. G. Stanley Hall, a professor at Johns Hopkins university, started the study into child nature. He sent questionnaires to mothers and teachers, one of the papers falling into the hands of Edward Everett Hale. The latter took children and made interesting experiments with them.

The speaker brought out the importance of personality and of learning what a child is thinking about and of taking the measure of its real self. He stated that he felt too much was spent on formal grammar and history subjects, with the five senses, sight, hearing, taste, smell and touch, being underdeveloped. In the early years when everything is new to the child the senses are reaching out in all directions.

As proof of this fact, he further stated that most people go down the street seeing nothing, while the artist beholds the beauties of the ocean, the sky, of the glorious sunset. Thus listening to the music of many instruments near only four or five people while the leaders hears every one and can locate the slightest discordant note.

Dr. Hulley said that the imaginative side of a child is calling for more direction and that more attention should be paid to building upon and around it. He told of seeing Helen Keller when she was but eight years old and all communication had to be imparted to her through the sense of touch. That she took the work of all grades and has attained a complete higher education, being able to attend the finest symphony concert and explaining her full appreciation.

In illustration of that part of his address relating to the power of attention, Dr. Hulley related an experience when he and others from Harvard university made a tour of an insane home in Massachusetts. He stated that in many homes outside of that institution and similar ones in other states, there are subnormal and abnormal children, that under the present educational system the teachers are blamed and abused. The remedy is the problem of the state.

Dr. Hulley paid a fine tribute to the splendid legislature of this state; that it was faithfully representing the people. As he opened his address with a bit of Irish humor, he closed with Irish blessings upon his audience. The Open Forum was conducted by Director Robert S. Holmes and for thirty minutes Dr. Hulley answered many questions on education from persons all over the house. He had a ready and comprehensive answer for every one.

The Sunday afternoon program opened at 2:45 with very adequately musical selections by the ladies singers of the Florida Normal and Junior Institute of St. Augustine. The singers were called back again and again. Prof. Heaton made announcements of Auditorium attractions during the current week. Dr. Hulley was introduced and presented by Dr. Holmes of the Forum. At the close of the meeting the audience enthusiastically showed their hearty appreciation of the educational treat they had enjoyed.

SPORTING DOPE

By DAVIS J. WALSH,

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—For lack of something better to do and because one, to say nothing of one's manager, must eat, Jack Dempsey is forsaking the ring pre-empt, to uplift the drug net. He will open an extended engagement at the Hippodrome tonight with Jack Kearns to feed him gags and the management to feed him pay checks, meantime awaiting developments from Messrs. Greb, Gibbons, Wills and Norfolk.

One of that quartette is to be Dempsey's next bête vis-à-vis, which probably means his next knockout victim. Even the folks in Pittsburgh and St. Paul wouldn't care much about backing either Greb or Gibbons at short odds.

However, the public seems to want some action in the heavyweight division, and starting this week, the public will be obliged.

Harry Greb is coming on from Pittsburgh tomorrow to finish his training for the big fight on March 13. Gibbons is due here Friday, although it was Tom's original intention to remain about from the bruzen-city in the austere grandeur of his Woodland camp.

It is well, however, to have the principals of any financial undertaking in a hot nature on the ground before the affair is in order that the mercenary villagers may be come sufficiently steamed up and the promoters of this particular fight were born quite a bit earlier than yesterday.

Meanwhile Harry Wills and Kiki Norfolk are to meet here on Thursday night for what might be termed the heavyweight championship, and here again a prospective opponent for Dempsey is in the making.

Whether the survivor will ever be of the sacred books of Buddhism. The word "Tripitaka" means "three baskets" these doctrines being formed of three major collections. One of these major collections is the Sutra on discipline, another is the Vinaya on doctrine, and the Abhidharma on metaphysics.

The thrilling and beautiful story of Gautama, or Sakya-muni, comes in here. There is time to tell it very briefly. He was the founder of Buddhism; was a Hindu, the son of a king, who did all in his power to tempt him from a religious life. He had wealth and regal honors, and wife and child, he made the great renunciation; for ten years he consulted books and continued with nature and God; then seated under the sacred fig tree, the truth rose upon him, and he called himself the "Buddha"—that is, the "Enlightened." Then he went forth to preach his gospel to all peoples.

Buddhism is today the religion of 500 millions of the human race. Like Mohammedanism, Buddhism is a missionary and proselytizing religion, at one time it carried great parts of India. Now it is a small tribe there, but it is powerful in Ceylon, in Burma, in Japan and in China. It has no caste system, its compassed heaven is extension of being, this is "Nirvana."

Buddha wrote nothing himself, but 500 years after his death his disciples collected his teachings under the name of "Tripitaka." This is today the same of the name of the sacred book of Hinduism. The simpler and nobler elements of the faith of Buddha have become formal and pedantic. Its precepts and injunctions are largely impractical and superstitious, but its moral principles are comprehensive and beautiful.

"The Five Kings." This is the title of the sacred books of the Chinese. The word "king" here means the web of cloth or the warp which keeps the threads in their places. These books contain the best wisdom of the greatest Chinese sages. Their earlier books, however, cannot be traced to a period higher than the eleventh century B. C. China is a vast country, for its enormous size, its great and varied resources, and its still greater population, it is the future. The people of the East, a strange mixture of races, have developed a peculiar interest in the past.

The Chinese were of China was, therefore, a very old and varied people, and it is not surprising that they have developed a very old and varied culture. allowed in the same ring with the champion in another matter. If the bout would be commenced, Wills would make by far the better attraction, particularly if he should knock the "Pittsburgh wind-mill" as Damon Runyon calls him, might easily out-snap Dempsey in a limited round engagement.

Greb, however, could hardly be figured to put Dempsey away and since the bout probably would be held in New Jersey, where decisions are taboo, there would not be much pertinence to the meeting.

Gibbons, on the other hand, has gained a reputation, as a mauler, with a long list of knockouts. He would be an ideal co-attraction in the event that he beats Greb decisively that the man with a punch always has a chance. If he knocks out Greb, there will clamor for a Dempsey-Gibbons meeting from Trenton to Thibault.

SHOOTS WIFE, CUTS THROAT, IN A MIAMI HOTEL; STILL ALIVE

MIAMI, Feb. 27.—With no hope held out for their recovery, the spark of life still remains with Edgar C. Frady and his wife, following the shooting of the latter by her husband and the slaying of the husband's own throat, following a quarrel at the fashionable Flamingo hotel early Sunday morning. Frady is president and treasurer of the Chicago branch of the Cole Motor company.

The couple have been at Miami sometime, accompanied by Miss Higgins, a friend. Saturday evening the trio went to the dinner-dance at the Flamingo and returned to the hotel at 1:30 Sunday morning. Mr. Frady had a room on the fourth floor and Mrs. Frady and Miss Higgins occupied a suite on the third floor. According to the statement of Miss Higgins, after the three had entered the elevator Frady began to upbraid his wife for receiving attentions from other men at the dance. Miss Higgins happened to think that she did not have the key to the room and went down to the desk for it. While she was gone Frady induced his wife to go to his

TWO BROKERAGE FIRMS FAIL TODAY
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Suspension of the brokerage firm of Mosher and Wallace was announced from the rostrum of the Consolidated Stock Exchange today.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States district court against Mosher and Wallace, brokers. No mention of assets or liabilities was made in the petition.

This is the fourteenth brokerage suspension or failure to be announced since the beginning of last week, and is the largest number of security houses to go to the wall in so short a time in many years. Spectacular gains secured in the stock market and the investigation by the district attorney office into alleged bucket shops, are believed to have been partly responsible for many of the failures.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The foreign exchange market opened strong today, with demand for sterling 1% higher at $4.43 1/2. Francs rose 1/2 cent to $20.48 for cables and $20.47 for checks. Lires advanced 1/2 point to $5.26 for cables and $5.25 for checks. Belgians were up 1/2 cent to $8.73 for cables and $8.72 for checks. Marks were 1/2 point lower to $0.45. Quilder cables, $38.38; checks, $38.33. Sweden kronen cables, $26.60; checks, $26.55.

WESTERN UNION TODAY ORDERED OFF RIGHT OF WAY, L. & N., KENTUCKY
WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The Western Union Telegraph company was ordered off the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company's right of way in Kentucky by a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States today.

ALL SUBMARINES OF THE NAVY TO BE KEPT GOING
WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The United States intends to keep in active service all of the 111 submarines in the navy, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt today testified to the House Naval Affairs committee.

Total abandonment of the under-sea craft as an arm of the navy was not assented to by the American delegates to the armament conference, Roosevelt testified.

"We have some poor things, but they are our own," Roosevelt said.

RESERVATION STARTS
WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The expected flood of reservations to the four-power conference started in the Senate today, Senator Robinson, Democrat, made known his intention to offer when the conference is begun.

Calvary is the new energy is measured.

HAVE IT REPAIRED

The experts who here offer their services are capable of bringing back newness and utility to a vast number of articles which you are ready to discard. Consult one of these experts before you decide to throw away a thing which seems to have outlived its usefulness. In many cases they will make it look even better than when new, and they will invariably surprise you with the fine perfection of their work. Their work is worthy of your patronage.

WINTER RESORTS

Hotel Clarendon

Registrations were heavy at the Clarendon for an entire day on Sunday, every room at the hotel being taken and many others turned away. The dining room of this establishment was crowded from the time the doors were opened, many of the people who were enjoying the beach and the water taking their midday meal here.

Among those registering were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Cox, and son of Lexington, Ky., where Mr. Cox is engaged in the gent's furnishing business. Mr. Cox is an enthusiastic golfer and will enjoy the wonderful links to be found in this vicinity.

Also registered are W. S. Hennessy of Chicago, B. N. Jewett, of Des Moines, R. E. Russell, of Kenosha, Wis., W. E. Carson, of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Evans, of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Russell, of Utica, N. Y., Mrs. G. A. Gould and son of Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Greenwald and son of Cleveland, G. A. Stone of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hollings arrived from Roanoke, Va., and will spend some time at the best beach in the world. Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Eighen are from Buffalo, N. Y., who will stay for several days before going further north. Mrs. G. E. Crabtree, of Goldsboro, N. C., accompanied by Miss E. Harvey, of Washington, N. C. will stay for a few days and then visit other points in the state, coming back to the Seaside Inn before returning home. Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Wellington are here from Chicago for an indefinite stay.

High School Carnival Postponed to March 10

The carnival to be given by students of Daytona High school, which was scheduled for Friday, March 3, has been postponed to Friday, March 10, due to the absence of so many of the boys on the jaunt to play basketball of the state championship at Gainesville. A number of the boys in the carnival are members of the team, hence it was decided today to put over the play until a week from Friday afternoon and evening.

William Home in Marshall Park is Entered By Thief

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Williams, in Marshall Park, was entered some time Saturday evening and valuables estimated to be worth more than one thousand dollars stolen, in the absence of the Williams. No trace of the burglars was found today, the Daytona Beach police being at work on the case.

Service for Mrs. C. F. Goss Held at Seabreeze Today

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Charles Frederick Goss, wife of the pastor of the Baptist church in Seabreeze, who died at her home in Seabreeze at an early hour Saturday morning, were held at the Tourist church this afternoon, beginning at 4:30. The Baggett-Wetherby company have charge of the body and will retain same until a later date, when it will be taken to the former home in Cincinnati for burial.

Thomas Walsh Buried at Pinewood
Funeral services over the remains of Thomas Walsh, of Sea Cliff, Long Island, N. Y., who died at one of the local hospitals Saturday afternoon, were held this morning by Father O'Boyle, St. Pauls Catholic church commencing at nine o'clock. Following the funeral, interment was made in Pinewood cemetery.

Services for Late Mr. Howard Conducted Sunday

Dr. Robert McKay had charge of the funeral services of John Calvin Howard, who died at his home 115 Bay street, Thursday morning. The services were conducted at St. Marys Episcopal church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, after which the Elks held a short service at the Baggett-Wetherby Co's vault in Pinewood cemetery, where the remains will be held until spring, when his widow, Mrs. John C. Howard will accompany the body to Wakefield, Mass., where it will be laid by the side of his brother George E. Howard, who died six years ago.

PRINCE GEORGE

Registering at the Prince George for an indefinite stay, the world's Ancona King, H. Cecil Shepard of Berea, Ohio is enjoying a much needed rest. Mr. Shepard has earned an exclusive reputation for himself as a breeder of the finest Ancona chickens to be had in the country and stands in the class with Thompson of Ringlet Barred Rock fame. Mr. Shepard has won many prizes with his exhibition stock one wall of his large office in Berea being entirely decorated with the ribbons won. Mr. Shepard personally looks after every order and this past season has been such a strenuous one that he feels the need of a rest, deciding on Daytona as the place to stay. J. O. Davis and sister, Miss J. H. Davis returns to the Prince George after having motored over the greater portion of the state. They will spend several weeks here before going back home to Hartford, Conn.

Also registered at the Prince George are Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Roesner, of New York, who will stay for several days.

Miss Elizabeth Appleton Putnam on her first visit to this section is so much impressed with the natural beauty of the scenery and the healthy air that she has decided to stay for several weeks although her original plan was to stay over for a day or two only.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Pace accompanied by their charming daughters Ellen and Edna, after spending some time at Miami, are again at the Prince George and will stay for some time before starting the last lap of their journey back home to Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Reisman entertained a number of friends at dinner on Sunday at the Prince George. The tables had been beautifully decorated and a tasty bounteous meal, such as the Prince George is noted for, being served to the dozen people comprising the party.

WOMEN'S INDOOR TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP TODAY

Altho the Annual Observance of

George Washington's Birthday Has Passed

an object lesson of practicing Economy and Thrift to achieve Independence can be learned by studying the Methods that George Washington employed.

During the trying days of the Revolution, the great leader was called upon time and again to admonish the colonies to economize and save so that they might have the resources to attain that goal they sought—Independence. How well they succeeded is a matter of history. You, too, can attain Financial Independence if you will just lay aside a few spare dollars each week and place them in a Savings Account with this strong, reliable Bank. We will add to the amount with interest, compounded quarterly. Why not come in and get further particulars today?
